AMERICAN BUSINESS IN 1929 SAW WANING YEAR HIT BY MARKET CRASH; PRESIDENT CALLS TRADE CONFERENCE

By W. S. Cousins
I. N. S. Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—After an unusually active and profitable first half-year and a summer of great activity in important lines of trade and industry in the whole post-war period, American industry finds itself at the year-end grappling with the problems thrust upon by a devastating break in the stock market, which wiped away billions of dollars of security values and ruined the immediate purchasing power of millions of American people.

Without exception, therefore, the regular annual surveys of business at this time, particularly in relation to the outlook for the new year, must revolve about the major question, namely the probable effect of the raging storm which swept through all speculative markets in October-November, breaking stock prices to a shadow of their former standing. Extreme losses were sustained by thousands of big and little dabblers in the market, the chief effect of which was to wipe out the purchasing power of those whose financial ground was swept away.

Major Questions

Two major questions confronted the country and to their solution the President of the United States called into conference the leaders of American finance, business and industry. These questions were:

1. To what extent has purchasing power been lessened by the stock market debacle?

2. What, if anything, should and can be done by American business as a whole to counteract its effect?

It was generally agreed that the first and foremost step in the process was the maintenance of important sections of home industry on as large a scale as possible, so that there would be no additions to the ranks of unemployed. Some of the industrial heads advocated and actually put into effect a higher scale of wages for industrial workers, but on the whole this was not deemed as important as the continuance of as near normal conditions as possible in the giant forges, factories, looms and counting houses of the country.

Construction Held Up

The leaders' conference made it plain that the drop in prices of stocks had not been an unmixed evil, since it had released approximately $4,000,000,000 from the call loan market for use in constructive operations in other lines, such as the construction and kindred industries. It was recalled that thousands of construction projects which had been held up pending earlier money market conditions might now be launched on the most favorable basis, and that Federal, state and municipal improvements of various kinds, for which appropriations had already been made, might be pushed promptly to conclusion to provide work for those who might otherwise be out of employment at a critical period.

With this as a background the industrial heads, surveying the sound condition of the country, the absence of big inventories of raw and manufactured goods, the abundance of credit, the deflated condition of commodities and the flush condition of corporation treasuries, concluded that with courage and cooperation the country could with certainty throw off the effects of the huge losses in the security markets, and carry out a program of industry and business rehabilitation. On this program all departments of business have embarked.

In Major Industry

The three major sections of American industry which have been given the most credit for the revival of industrial prosperity after the war are: steel, manufacturing, building construction and automobile manufacturing. Enormous increases in the volume and cash value of the outputs of these industries are written large in the records of post-war American prosperity, and in many respects they are inter-related as representing the individual and corporate needs of a growing country.

The steel industry in 1929, even with the heavy decrease in operations in the last three months of the year, established new high peace time records for output of finished steel and for net earnings of representative corporations. Steel ingot output topped fifty-million tons in the tenth month of the year and in the mid-summer season, when blast furnaces and mills are operating at the low rates, steel mills were working at 103 per cent of theoretical capacity.

The Auto Industry

The automobile industry made the error of turning out too many cars and trucks in the first half of the year, forcing them down the dealers' throats and instituting a price-cutting war which proved costly, to say the least, for many of its important units.

When the figures for the full year are compiled, they will show a total of close to 5,700,000 vehicles for the United States and Canada, for general purposes considered as one big field. This is the first time in history that the output has exceeded 5,000,000 cars, but the year-end sees production being scientifically curtailed, dealers' stocks cut down, prices on the upturn, and a better basis for the motor car industry laid.

The building construction industry thrives on personal and family prosperity, and cheap money. Abundance of money in the mortgage markets at favorable interest rates stimulates home construction, while the withdrawal of funds from this market, such as was witnessed by the crowding of credit into the 10 per cent call loan market, starves the whole construction industry and curtails building.

Total Under Six Billion

For that reason it was easy to see that the industry this year would fall far short of the $6,628,000,000 record for buildings of all kinds hung up in 1928. The year's total will be somewhat under six billions, the large increase in commercial building in the centers of population and the huge projects put through by the utility corporations offsetting only partially the enormous falling off in home and suburban construction. The year ends more favorably for the building trade than it opened, because of the loosening up of money supplies for the mortgage markets.

Activities in the textile, copper, clothing and other trades have slowed down at the year-end, reflecting in part the damage done by the losses sustained in the stock market. The oil industry in the year has made good progress in the solution of its overproduction problem, the copper industry is holding prices around 18 cents a pound for the red metal; the railroad equipment industry is booking large orders for the new year: the sugar industry in stabilizing prices.

Railroad net earnings in the final quarter of 1929 reflect the moderate drop in freight car loadings produced by the unseasonable slackening of business, but the roads as a whole have had a splendid year, as amply attested by the increases in cash dividends of the important carriers.

SANTA IS PERPLEXED AS HE FACES HERCULEAN TASK OF SELECTING THOUSANDS OF CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Including today there are only 12 shopping days to Christmas.

It's no wonder that Santa wears a perplexed look just at this season, as many folks do just now, and their problems are not nearly as big as his.

I don't doubt that sometimes my face seems as a mask of perplexity as I gaze into the many shop windows of the town, but it is a different problem that I there find. The problem is just what to choose from the great array of excellent gift suggestions. There are so many nice ones to be found here that I want to buy more than I actually need to bestow and more, I fear, than my Christmas budget will allow.

This problem was manifest when I wanted to select Dad's gift to mother, and I stood in front of the window at Tomesani's, 322 Mill street. In the corner at the rear of the display space was a Christmas tree, and attached to the many golden ribbon cords that radiated from the tree were many fine electric pieces placed here and there. Toasters, waffle sets, percolators, warming pads, curling irons, sweepers, and many other things were to be seen. But which to choose? I finally decided upon a waffle iron, pitcher, syrup jug, and sugar shaker which pieces were placed upon a rectangular tray. It will be hard to wait till Christmas morning when mother's face will alight with joy at this superb gift.

At Kanter's, Grand Theatre block, my purchase consisted of a green rayon bed-room set. The pieces were: Pillow trimmed with a spray of pink flowers, bed spread, and covers for dresser, chifforobe and vanity. This is to be Aunt Ellen's gift to mother, and I know she'll be glad she asked me to assist to choosing it. There are so many suggestions at Kanter's in the line of table runners, doilies and other articles of fancy work, all so well made too.

"It's hard to find a gift for a man." This saying seems like a very old one to me, for I've heard it so often. Now I know what I can answer the next

Brown, 660; Clifford Darrah, 660; Mrs. Baldwin, 607; R. E. Cahall, 655.

Refreshments of hot-dog and cheese sandwiches, coffee and soft drinks were sold. A neat sum was realized. The next party to be given by the Men's Club will be held the second Tuesday evening in January. It is hoped that all will keep the date in mind.

JURY DELIBERATES TEN MINUTES ON CASE

Acquit Byberry Hospital Employee of Involuntary Manslaughter

OTHER COURT CASES

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 11.—Deliberating less than ten minutes a jury in criminal court yesterday acquitted Robert G. McCaw, plumber's helper employed at the Byberry Hospital, of a charge of involuntary manslaughter, but directed that he pay the costs.

McCaw was charged with being responsible for the death of Miss Bertha Jackson, a nurse at the hospital, who was killed in an automobile accident on November 10, on the Lincoln Highway when the car the defendant was driving struck her. The accident happened near the Blue Spruce Inn, not far from the Philadelphia City Line.

The Commonwealth called John Lawler, of Fox Chase, a helper at the Byberry Hospital, who testified that he and McCaw, Miss Jackson, Miss Irene Cook and McCaw's father left Frankford and drove to the Blue Spruce Inn for something to eat. At the inn, McCaw's father was drunk, and on the request of Miss Jackson, McCaw drove his father back to the Byberry Hospital where he too was employed. On the way back to the Blue Spruce Inn, the defendant's car struck Miss Jackson, who had started to walk home when McCaw did not return immediately.

Lawler testified that McCaw was driving about 35 miles an hour when the accident happened and that a bus was coming toward them at the time. The witness stated the defendant had taken nothing to drink at the Blue Spruce Inn.

Park Guard Eckes, who arrested the defendant, and Sergeant Harry Dagney, of the Park Guard service, both testified they saw nothing wrong with the defendant when they observed him after his arrest.

Folks of Andalusia Patronize Card Party

ANDALUSIA, Dec. 11.—A card party was held in King's Hall on Friday evening, December 7th, by Miss Beryl Stevenson and her Sunday School class for the benefit of the Lenten offering.

There were twelve tables of pinochle and seven games were played. The winners progressed. After the games were completed every one retired to the basement where they were served coffee and cake and mints.

Prizes were awarded to those attaining the high scores, namely: Edward Witorsky, 697; Nick Blackwood, 687; Miss Becker, 679; H. Roeger, 670; Mrs. Williams, 665; Ben Smuda, 658; Ruth Fries, 652; Mr. Ott, 644; Agnes Youngham, 641; W. Rukersgill, 633; W. Lowery, 620; Elva Hodges, 610; Johnny McCloud, 608; Margaret Pyle, 605; Dorothy McCormick, 601; Ben H. Clard, 600; Thelma Freas, 597; Emma Fries, 593; Mrs. Louis Hartman, 590; Norman Fries, 587.

Margaret Youngham, 582; Kathryn Highan, 573; Mildred Stevenson, 570; W. Kershaw, 570; Nelson Watts, 568; Arthur Towle, 563; E. Vickers, 561; E. Katzmer, 556; S. Shoemaker, 554; W. Youngham, 553; Paul Roeger, 548; Walter Youngham, 550; Martha Hodges, 541.

BENSALEM SENIORS TO PRESENT PLAY IN JAN.

"The Odd-Job Man" is Title of Sketch to Be Given

HAVE SPELLING "BEE"

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL, Cornwells Heights, Dec. 11.—The senior class of the Bensalem Township high school has decided to present a play sometime during the month of January. The one decided upon is "The Odd-Job Man," by Lida Larrimor.

Cast of characters will include: John J. Gordan, a wealthy manufacturer, Wesley Kummerle; Celia Gordan, his daughter, Bella Reichle; Robert Gordan, his son and heir, Joseph Gruver; Dolly Gordan, his youngest daughter, Irene Underwood; Helen Spencer, a former governess, Grace Barth; Nora, the Gordan cook, Florence Baxter; Kitty Miller, who brightens the village drug store, Regina Goodavage; Gerald Page, a young man with a poetic soul and a head for business, Harold Fitch; Michael Thorne, the odd-job man, Richard Brackin.

The full cooperation of the students, parents, and the public in general is desired by the members of the senior class, who will be busy during the next few weeks with rehearsals.

On Friday, December 6th, the first elimination contest in the Peirce School spelling contest was conducted in the Bensalem school, and oral and written examinations took place in the home room at the high school, here.

The five students making the highest scores in each room are to be picked for a team which will study and then enter contests at Peirce School in the Spring.

TWO FOOTBALL STARS TO ADDRESS FATHERS

University of Penna. Players To Make Addresses Here Tomorrow Night

THE PUBLIC IS INVITED

The Bristol Fathers' Association has prepared an interesting program for the regular monthly meeting to be held in the high school auditorium on Thursday evening of this week.

The meeting will be addressed by Paul Riblett, who played as end on this year's football team of the University of Pennsylvania, and Harry Warren, who played center on the same team. These young men have a thorough knowledge of the game and their reminiscences of football and the games in which they played, cannot help but prove of interest to all who listen to them.

It has also been arranged to stage a basketball game between two teams, composed of members of the Fathers' Association. The line-up of the teams has not yet been announced but it has been suggested that the personell of one of the teams shall be as follows: "Senator" Johnson MacAuley, center; M. J. Hill and Stanford K. Runyon, forwards; V. V. Vansant and P. M. Minster, guards. The substitutes should be J. E. W. Tracy, Walter F. Leedom, Dr. Frank Lehman and Dr. J. Fred Wagner. Dave Landreth could act as coach, and Dr. George T. Foy should be requested to have his ambulance outside, so as to be ready for any emergency which might arise.

The annual election of officers will be held at this meeting. At the close a lunch will be served in the cafeteria. These meetings are open to all the men in the town, whether they are members of the Association or not. A large attendance is expected.

SCHOOLMEN MEET HERE TO DISCUSS VARIOUS TOPICS

Main Idea is To Make The Curriculum Uniform In Lower Bucks County

FORM ORGANIZATION

Will Work to Improve Educational Conditions in This Section

An important as well as most interesting meeting of the schoolmen of lower Bucks County was held in the library room of the Bristol High School last evening.

Representatives of the following schools were present:

Bensalem, Northampton Township, Southampton Township, South Langhorne, Hulmeville, Morrisville, New Hope, Tullytown, Newtown, Yardley, Langhorne, Bristol Township, Bristol Borough.

Prior to the meeting a dinner was served in the cafeteria, which was prepared by a group of girls, from the domestic science department.

Superintendent Howard E. James called the meeting to order, after which a general discussion followed on the question, as to how to establish a uniform curriculum in all the schools in lower Bucks County, from the seventh grade upward, so that a student transferring from one school district to another, would not be handicapped or retarded, because of a difference in the curriculums.

The discussion was interesting and developed many good ideas and suggestions. All present felt the urgent need for uniformity, the only difference of opinion being, as to how to begin to make the correction. It was finally decided to appoint a committee to compare the curriculums now in use in all the schools in lower Bucks County, and to report the results of their investigations at the next meeting, which will be held at Langhorne in January, together with any suggestions they might want to offer. The committee consists of all the principals of the schools, represented at the meeting.

Following the disposition of this question, it was decided to form a permanent organization. Lower Bucks County Schoolmen's Group was selected as the name for the organization. Under the election of officers, Howard E. James, of Bristol, was elected president; W. A. Thomas, of Langhorne, vice-president and Theodore Gottlieb, of New Hope, secretary.

Satisfaction was expressed over the success of the baseball league which was formed last spring, among the Lower Bucks County schools, and it was decided to continue the league, through all the other athletic activities in the schools.

Following the business session, C. H. Boehm, of Morrisville, exhibited some moving pictures, which he had taken, while on a trip to Russia. Some of the pictures were taken above the Arctic Circle and showed the midnight sun just above the horizon. The pictures of Leningrad and Moscow were unusually interesting. Mr. Boehm gave a description of the places he had visited as the pictures were shown.

All present felt that the meeting had been a success and that a profitable beginning had been made. Throughout the evening, a splendid spirit of cordiality was shown, and the earnest desire of all present seemed to be to get together, and apply corrective measures as quickly as possible, so that the school system may be made more effective in meeting the requirements of the schools represented at the meeting.

Those present were: M. R. Reiter, C. H. Boehm, Leonard B. Caum, Paul T. Johnson, Stanford Offner, Henry Gutknecht, Earl K. Ritter, Morrisville; W. J. Kines, Hulmeville; M. P. Hammond, S. Langhorne; Willard C. Miller, Raymond O. Gilbert, Northampton Township; Eugene Klinger, Southampton Township; George Itterly, Tullytown; C. Willard Shuster, Mr. Snyder, Newtown; S. S. Utz, Yardley; William A. Thomas, Edwin Kephart, Chas. F. Beck, Langhorne; George F. Zarr, Ray P. Hess, Donald Snively, Bristol Township; Theodore Gottlieb, Adam Bordner, Ralph Kreps, New Hope; S. K. Faust, J. M. Sollinberger, G. W. Miller, H. Bowers Peters, Anson Ham, Robert M. Allison, Bensalem; H. E. James, Warren P. Snyder, Kenneth Townsend, Silas Shoemaker, Raymond Yeich, Corwan Bryan, Walter Shank, Frederick Leibfreid, Jr., Emil Metzger, Russell B. Carty, Doron Green, Bristol; William Klees, a guest of the Bristol teachers.

SLICING THE MELON

If the ways and means committee of the house should try to please all those who are asking for a slice of the promised tax-cut melon, its tax-revision bill would provide for revenues so small that there would not be money enough to run the government.

It is manifest that it will be impossible for congress to grant all these requests. Some one must pay the taxes. It may be taken for granted, however, that such reductions as congress is to make in the internal taxes will be devised to please the greatest possible number of people.

There will be friends of all these reductions on the floor of congress. They will fill pages of the Congressional Record with speeches in favor of every one of them. It will be interesting to note when the tax-reduction bill comes to a vote how many of the special demands have been forgotten in the final drafting of the measure.

The customs taxes levied at the frontiers do not please the Democrats. But they will continue their fight against the tariff chiefly because they think it a good talking point against the Republicans and also because the professional friends of the farmers are attacking the tariff as a measure of favoritism to the manufactures of the East.

In the end congress should adopt the Hoover policy, as expounded in his message, of "giving a measure of tax relief to the maximum number of taxpayers, with relatively larger benefits to taxpayers with small or moderate incomes."

BYGONE BUGABOOS

Governor Larson, of New Jersey, announced his intention to appoint Dwight W. Morrow to the United States senate and drew, in the way of public reaction, approvals of the attitude of "what of it?"

There was an interval not long ago when even a whispered suggestion of the appointment of a Morgan partner to the senate in the informal and unexpected fashion adopted by Governor Larson would have caused a great lifting of eyebrows and angry voices in many parts of the country. But the public has had time to see what the routine party system and the direct primary have been doing to the senate. The confusion of the last few years, which reached a climax in the special session recently ended, has led many people to see that if the legislative branch of the federal government isn't to be utterly futile it will need something more than the leadership of old party war horses and do-nothing favorite sons.

The time has come for placing some check on the forces of sentimentalism, sectionalism, prejudice, ignorance and fanaticism that have combined to inspire, color and even direct the whole process of legislation in Washington.

Students of politics will see in Morrow incident signs of a general reaction against the whole system of amateur government fostered in congress.

Popular fear and distrust, once provoked by the shadow of big business are now crystallized by mediocrity and government by the bloc and lobby.

The unemployment problem for many is how to keep that way.

"IS EVERYBODY HAPPY?"

By ELEANORE CAREY

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring Ted Lewis

SYNOPSIS

Having pawned the violin given to his father by the Austrian Emperor in order to raise money to pay their rent in New York and to buy the saxophone which was to be the means of his getting a job, Ted Todd, son of the Budapest violinist and conductor, Victor Molner, makes his debut as a jazz player in a Hungarian cafe on the night that his parents think he is to open with the New York Symphony Orchestra. They find him playing and singing jazz in the cafe and Molnar disowns his son. But Ted makes a big hit and Gail Wilson urges him to organize a band.

INSTALLMENT XIII

Mr. Abrams, speaking rapidly gave a short dissertation on the comparative merits of the two girls—with Lena considerably taking the advantage, and Gail surprised at his reluctance to sign a contract with such an obviously excellent acquisition to his orchestra, said in chiding.

"Why, Ted, you are not afraid she will steal the act are you?" and Ted weakening at the combined onslaught of all their arguments, finally said to Mr. Abrams:

"Well, I guess you know her better than I do."

"Now, again with that other number, Ted, and I'll go back stage and talk to her about salary and find out just what she wants." And Gail went back to the dressing rooms to find Lena just as Ted started his second number.

"You can work the act. But no sentiment."

Lena was hurrying into her street clothes, confident that Ted would let her go, when a knock came on the dressing room door.

"Come in," sweetly—and a look of surprise spread over her face as she saw Gail standing there.

"Oh, I do not think you want me," said Lena as she began tying her smart scarf around her neck. "I have just had a feeling right along that I wouldn't do."

Lena stared her best "injured innocence" stare as she looked at Gail who answered:

"But we do want you. That is, of course, if we can meet your salary How much do you ask for your services?"

Lena answered promptly. "Three hundred dollars is my usual price, but since my show has closed for the season, I might consider two hundred."

"Three hundred is a little more than I had counted on paying, but I'll be glad to draw up a contract for the last price you named. And I am glad you have decided to join us. I am sure you will like Mr. Todd."

"I am sure I will," said Lena significantly, as Gail smiled and left the room.

Gail returned to the theatre while Ted was still playing, and she motioned to Ted that Lena had consented to join the organization. Ted smiled at her, but in his heart a fear was making it beat unnecessarily rapidly.

The song was finished and as Ted was about to join Gail and Mr. Abrams again, he noticed Lena standing at the back of the theatre motioning him to come where she was. His heart sank, and the fear that had been gnawing at his heart took on alarming proportions. Nothing must happen to hurt Gail or to interfere with their happy little romance. And Ted was afraid of Lena.

"Thank you so much, Ted, for signing me up," she said to him as he came up to her. "I was afraid I wasn't acceptable since you never have come to see me lately, and you know, Ted, I have been in love with you for years!"

"I want to tell you something, Lena," Ted said, looking furtively from side to side, to be sure no one was watching him. "We'll have to forget all about that. That was ended sometime ago, the time you treated me so shabbily at the theatre. I believed then that you didn't care for me any more. Now that that is all over, you can work in the act. But no sentiment—understand?"

"Yes—if that's the way you feel about it!" And Lena cast down her eyes in feigned humility and resignation.

"And Miss Wilson must not know anything about us," he said, as he turned to leave. And it was fortunate that Ted did not see the expression on Lena's face as he left her.

As Ted returned to the seats where Gail had joined Mr. Abrams, she said excitedly, "Ted, let's show Mr. Abrams that special number by Miss DeVere. It is clever, and I know he would like to see it."

Reluctantly Ted asked Lena to rehearse the song they sing together, and Lena, apparently true to her word, covered any feeling she may have had and treated Ted as a stranger.

They took their places behind the footlights and the orchestra started the number known as the "Kissing Song." The words ran—

Here's a kiss for Monday,
And one for Tuesday, too.
Here is one for Wednesday,
I think the world of you.
Here is one for Thursday,
And Friday on your cheek,
And a kiss for Saturday
Makes a kiss each day in the week.

Between each line Ted was supposed to kiss Lena. The girl received the demonstration with such animation and delight that both Gail and Mr. Abrams were delighted. When the song was ended, Ted jumped into the front row, where now his mother had joined Gail and the "theatrical booking agent." He was alarmed for fear Mrs. Molnar may have said something to Gail about Lena.

As he sat down Mr. Abrams said, "You've got a fine act, Ted. I'll get you a good tryout even though you have stolen my children's tutor. That girl, Miss DeVere, is a big addition to the act!"

"Thanks, Mr. Abrams, I am very grateful to you. I think myself that Miss DeVere will help lend color. She is rather a colorful asset."

Ted looked at Gail, as the girl said, "Your mother likes her, too, doesn't she?" This was certainly significant. Gail must have heard something that caused this comment to designate Lena specifically, and to talk about her so much. He looked at his mother, "You liked her, did you, mother?" And his mother answered innocently, "Yes, Ted, she dances beautifully."

But the fear that Gail may have heard about his affair with Lena had taken hold of Ted and he could not shake it off. He would have to take his mother home, or get her away by herself so that he could ask her if she had said anything to the girl! He colud not stand the anxiety any longer.

His mother said, "Good Night," to Gail and Mr. Abrams and thanked them for a pleasant afternoon, and Ted took her up the aisle of the theatre to the entrance. He hardly was out of ear shot when he asked his mother anxiously:

"Did you say anything to Gail about my knowing Lena, Mother?"

"My son, I have lived a long time. I have seen and heard many things, and one of the greatest lessons I have learned is that silence is the sweetest music a woman can make."

With a sigh of great relief—a heavy weight lifted from his shoulders, Ted walked with his mother out of the theatre door on to the street.

Nervously, Ted walked into the corridor of their apartment. What if he should meet his father? As they came to the door of the apartment, Ted turned to leave his mother when she said to him, "Wait, Ted, I'm going to talk to your father. Maybe he'll see you. Just stay here a minute!"

"Oh, Mother, do you think there's a chance?"

"I am going to try. I'll find out!" And she went softly into the apartment.

As she entered she called, "Father, father," and when no answer was forthcoming she hurried into the bedroom where he often took a short nap before their evening meal.

The bedroom was empty—and Mrs. Molnar looked around to find the dresser drawer open, and looking inside it she found that it was empty. She was frightened. Rushing wildly into the living room she cried, "Father, Father!" Tears were in her voice and panic stricken she called to her son, who came into the room, closing the door behind him.

His mother, close to hysterics, clung to Ted, and he tried to quiet her by saying, "Don't worry, Mother, and don't cry anymore. He will not be gone long, and then you'll laugh at your foolish fears. Mother, dear, I'll take a chance and move back here tonight, and things will be again like old times."

Poor Mrs. Molnar tried to hide the pain in her heart, wipe away the fear that had been clutching it. She wiped away the tears and with her eyes still burning she looked at her son and smiled.

Christmas Seals Ring in Health

In the olden days anyone could be a bell ringer. Sometimes a citizen had to pay for the privilege; if he abused the honor he had to pay a fine. In All Saints' Church, at Hastings, England, these words may still be seen:

"This is a belfry that is free
For all those that civil be,
And if you please to chime or ring
It is a very pleasant thing."

All through history since the 16th century, which was the golden age of bells, chimes have called out to people their cheerful messages, usually telling a story. For example, with the passing of the old year the bells were tolled in sadness, then, when midnight had struck, the merry peals clanged forth their welcome to the new year. Before the invention of the newspaper the town crier focused the attention of the people by lustily clanging a bell before he shouted the important news it was his duty to spread throughout the city. Since bells have so often served to proclaim victory it is not surprising to find that the design of the modern cup presented as a token of victory in sport is in reality an inverted bell.

It is equally fitting that on the gay little Christmas Seal for 1929 a bell ringer should be portrayed tugging at a heavy bell, announcing once again to the nation that further advances have been made against the enemy tuberculosis. Each year the Seal brings its message of health at the Christmas season to remind people that sickness can be prevented.

The First Christmas Seal

Although the stamps are now well known, they originated in a modest manner only twenty-five years ago as the invention of a Danish postal clerk, who devised them to raise money for a tuberculosis hospital for the children of Copenhagen. Miss Emily P. Bissell, of Wilmington, Delaware, was the god-mother of the Christmas Seal in this country. She also was seeking for a method to raise money for a tuberculosis institution in her state and in 1907 found the solution to her problem in a magazine article describing the Danish seal and its successful mission. Through her efforts a fund of $3,000 was raised and the project begun. The following year the first nation-wide sale of tuberculosis Christmas Seals was undertaken, and women's clubs, religious bodies and business groups gave their support to this cheerful method of raising money. In 1910 the then young National Tuberculosis Association took over the sale of the Seals and has directed it ever since. The Seals therefore should be called tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

The First American Christmas Seal

Thanks to the tiny Seal, state after state has been organized to attack tuberculosis with a scientific program. Through the intensive educational work made possible by the Christmas Seal, health laws have been passed and are being enforced; tuberculosis specialists and nurses reach the most remote country districts; printed matter on disease prevention is circulated in schools, homes and factories, and there is an active public interest in tuberculosis control among civic, political, commercial, social and religious groups.

This year again the Seal carries its message of health throughout the country, giving everyone a chance to be a bell ringer as in olden days—a proclaimer of the important tidings that health is the best insurance for happiness and that tuberculosis may be cured if discovered in time.

I Am the Christmas Seal

I am the Christmas Seal,
Messenger of happiness,
Symbol of service.
I am the highest form of health insurance.
I co-operate in all health work.
I fight tuberculosis.
I safeguard the home.
I stand watch over the school.
I restore sick children to health.
I protect the individual, the family and the public.
I teach health habits and health facts.
I preach the gospel of sunshine, fresh air and cleanliness.
I demonstrate the value of exercise and work, rest and play.
My value is beyond price—my cost small.
I am the penny Christmas Seal.

Bells Peal Forth

Pennsylvania joins other states in the ringing of bells on Friday, November 29, at 10 A. M. to announce the opening of the Christmas Seal sale.

Bells were rung in many parts of the State, with as many as 200 ringing out a message of health in individual counties. These included church, school, fire and other bells.

The 1929 Christmas Seals picture a bell and bell ringer and it was estimated that thousands of bells sent forth the message:

Ring out tuberculosis,
Ring in health.

TULLYTOWN

On Saturday evening a number of friends of Mrs. Bushweilder, of Main street, were entertained at her home in honor of her birthday. The evening was spent in a general social way. Refreshments were served.

Plans have been completed for the sour krout supper and Christmas bazaar to be held in the social room of the Tullytown M. E. Church on Friday evening. The committee has many surprises for those attending. The affair is given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Tullytown M. E. Church.

Santa is Perplexed as He Faces Herculean Task

time, for Adler's, Mill street, helps to solve the Christmas gift for the male member of the family. There are to be seen some dandy slip-on sweaters of a weave that is different. Two very pretty shades are shown in green and brown, and Mr. Adler has still more colors to select from. At this store there is also a fine selection of scarfs. These are shown in the latest materials and colorings.

Men's gifts are also to be found in abundance at Straus', 417 Mill street. One of my purchases at Straus included a shaving set for one of the boys. The box contains a razor, shaving cream, talcum powder, after-shaving lotion. And the array of tobacco and cigars at this store! Unless one knows the brand the smoker-friend likes best, the task of selecting it is bewildering. I had already made inquiries as to Uncle Jack's favorite blend of smoking tobacco, and so the problem was an easy one, especially as Mr. Straus had the desired tobacco in various sized cans.

Moffo's shoe stores are located in many parts of the town. At 311 Mill, 921 Wood, and 219 Buckley streets, are they to be found. While passing down Mill street yesterday I espied a pair of moccasins that will make a fine gift, and one that is "different." This particular style now on display at Moffo's Mill street store is fashioned of smoked leather and kid, trimming of colored beads gracing the front. The leather mules, also shown at this establishment, are sure to prove durable I know, and I was told they are to be had in blue, green, lavender, and red.

The family decided to make the purchase of greens early this year, as we wanted a good selection. And duly, I made a trip to the green-houses of Jacob C. Schmidt yesterday, and after looking over his large supply of wreaths, ordered a half dozen small ones delivered to the house. These we plan to place in the windows. Then as a little surprise for all I asked Mr. Schmidt to send over a poinsettia the day before Christmas. This will leave Christmas cheer for days after the festivities have ended.

RELIEVES TICKLING THROAT, NERVOUS HACKING

A dry tickling throat sets up a constant irritation and nervous hacking that is both useless and harmful. It hurts the air tubes and air sacs, tires the muscles, uses up needed energy. Foley's Honey and Tar is immediately beneficial, as it puts a soothing demulcent coating on the dry irritated surfaces, relieving at once the tickling that causes the harmful distressing cough. Mildly laxative, no opiates, pleasantly sedative. Accept no substitute. For sale at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store.—(Adv.)

HIBERNIANS TO OPEN BASKETBALL LEAGUE

By T. M. Juno

Tomorrow night in the A. O. H. hall the basketball league among the members of the organization will get under way.

The public is invited to attend all the games without paying any admission and a large crowd is expected because this will probably be the only organized basketball league in Bristol this season.

This is the second year for the A. O. H. Basketball League and from all indications it looks like another successful season.

The teams are composed of members only and every man will be doing his utmost in an effort to bring his team to the top. Last season the gonfalon wasn't captured until the last few games, showing the close race which was the result.

All games will be played in the A. O. H. hall and will start at 7.30 p. m. sharp. Two games will be played on each Monday and Thursday. Jay Dugan and Jim Hoffman have been appointed referees for the first half.

The teams with their captains are as follows:

Arrows: "Marty" Fallon, captain; John Brady, John Rodgers, John Mulligan, Ed. Sullivan, Ed. McDevitt, R. Gosline, and John Culligan.

Whoopies: John Connors, captain, Paul McGinley, D. Ennis, C. Clafferty, Joe Ward, Ed. Kervick, H. McGinley.

Gypsies: Gene Lawler, captain; Joe Kervick, James Coyle, James Roe, Ed. Dugan, John Leyden, Larry Mulligan, Mike McCarry.

Fighting Five: "Mike" Downs, captain; H. Brady, P. Kelly, J. Mulligan, William Thompson, E. Taffe, P. McCullion, and J. Patterson.

Shamrocks: "Jimmie" Lake, captain; A. McClafferty, E. Mulligan, E. Connors, J. Dougherty, G. Dougherty, H. Dugan, and N. Ferry.

The schedule for the first half follows:

Thu., Dec. 12—Shamrocks vs. Fighting Five, Whoopies vs. Gypsies.

Mon., Dec. 16—Arrows vs. Whoopies, Gypsies vs. Fighting Five.

Thu., Dec. 19—Whoopies vs. Fighting Five, Shamrocks vs. Arrows.

Mon., Dec. 23—Fighting Five vs. Arrows, Shamrocks vs. Gypsies.

Thu., Dec. 26—Arrows vs. Gypsies, Shamrocks vs. Whoopies.

Mon., Dec. 30—Fighting Five vs. Shamrocks, Gypsies vs. Whoopies.

Thu., Jan. 2—Whoopies vs. Arrows, Fighting Five vs. Gypsies.

Jury Deliberates Ten Minutes On Case

McCaw himself testified that he had not taken a drink other than a bottle of near-beer, the entire day or night.

Edward A. McNally, assistant superintendent of the Byberry Hospital, employer of the defendant, testified that McCaw's reputation for being sober and industrious was "very good."

Herbert Tomlinson, operator of a gasoline station, who accompanied the car to the hospital that carried the dying girl, testified for the Commonwealth that in his opinion McCaw, the driver of the car, was drunk. Erma Fridler, of Langhorne, also testified that in her opinion McCaw, earlier in the evening, was drunk when he left a refreshment stand at Langhorne.

A jury acquitted Norman Schively, of Tinicum, on two charges yesterday and convicted him of assault and battery committed upon Mahlon Leichliter of Tinicum. Judge Hiram H. Keller imposed a sentence of $100 and costs and held the young man in his own recognizance to keep the peace for one year toward Leichliter. On charges of assault and battery with intent to kill and aggravated assault and battery, Schively was acquitted.

Martin E. Deshler, former Chief of Police of Doylestown, went on trial yesterday afternoon before Judge Keller on charges of larceny of $25 from a Baltimore baker and impersonating an officer on July 15 this year on the Lincoln Highway near Trevose. The prosecutor in the case is Corporal Welsh, of the South Langhorne substation of Highway Patrol, who arrested Deshler on the information of Abraham Newman, of 2256 Bloomfield avenue, Baltimore, and his father-in-law, Max Youff, of Baltimore.

According to Newman, the first witness for the Commonwealth, he was driving from New York to Baltimore in a truck on July 15 when it broke down near Trevose. He said he had taken the license plates off the car when a car drove up and a man stepped out and said, "You are under arrest."

"I was taken to a garage at Trevose and then into a lunch room nearby by this man," Newman testified. "The man was in plain clothes and he showed me a badge with a gold one on it. He told me he was a State cop and asked me how much money I had. I told him $28 and then he asked me how much the old man had. When I informed him the old fellow had only $4 he told him to keep it but he took $25 from me and allowed me $3 to get back to Baltimore with. He informed me he would notify me when the case would be called in court.

"Six weeks later I came back to South Langhorne and stopped at the garage where my truck had been taken by the man who stopped me. I then returned to Baltimore and again returned to South Langhorne where I went to the Highway Patrol barracks and told them what had happened to me. The following day I identified the man at the Doylestown police barracks from a photograph.

"At the hearing before Justice Hobensack in Doylestown I positively identified the man Martin Deshler as the one who stopped me and took my $25. This hearing was on November 19."

Max Youff, of Baltimore, corroborated his son-in-law's testimony and also identified Deshler as the man who stopped them.

Walter C. Matthews, proprietor of a Trevose garage, testified for the Commonwealth that he saw Deshler bring the truck to the garage on July 15 and that he saw Newman and Youff there at the same time with Deshler. The witness said that he did not see any of the money transaction spoken of and that he did not remember how Deshler was dressed that day.

"Deshler was in a yellow car that day and was accompanied by another man," Matthews testified. "I thought the car was a Chrysler."

RELIEF FROM DREADED COUGHING

Hard coughs that strain and weaken, resulting from colds and recurring bronchial attacks, are very quickly eased and relieved by reliable Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, that dislodges irritating mucous without effort, and clears up the distressing cough. Mrs. F. A. Gibson, Racine, Wisconsin, says: "Coughs never last long in our family—Foley's Honey and Tar puts a quick end to coughing, and heals the sore spots. Our druggist recommended it." For sale at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store.—(Adv.)

"Ringing in Health

The sale of Christmas Seals and Health Bonds begins today, November 29.

The Seals sell for one cent each and the Bonds range from $5 to $1,000.

Health Bonds are for those persons or business concerns who want to help more generously and cannot use many Seals.

The Seals and Bonds provide funds for the work of the united local, state and national tuberculosis organizations in combating the White Plague and improving health conditions.

In Pennsylvania this work is carried on by the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society and its 100 affiliated organizations.

These are truly Health Seals, since every measure to prevent tuberculosis makes for better health generally.

The 1929 Seal pictures a bell and a bell-ringer. The more of these bells rung this holiday season the greater will be the health work carried on throughout the coming year.

Tuberculosis Big Menace to State

The continued presence of tuberculosis is a menace and also a challenge to all the people of Pennsylvania, declared Dr. M. G. Brumbaugh, former Governor, in addressing a meeting of the Christmas Seal Committee for Pennsylvania held in Harrisburg on November 20.

Dr. Brumbaugh, who is president of Juniata College, continuing, said:

"The menace is in the fact that we still have many people suffering with this malady that ought to have help and the State Tuberculosis Society is an important agency in this work. It has done commendable work, but needs further aid of a definite and substantial character to banish this dread disease. It is a challenge because any right-minded citizen concerned in the welfare of the commonwealth or interested in the health of his kind should feel it his duty or her duty to join in this cause heartily with a view to building increased health.

"We have been entirely too complacent under the statistics that tuberculosis is gradually being conquered. The conquest is not ended nor should our efforts cease until we have gone vastly beyond our present control of this disease.

"Since tuberculosis is preventable, there are but three facts that cause it to continue. These are neglect, indifference and ignorance, and these sources of weakness can be remedied as follows:

"Given sufficient funds to carry on its commendable and humanitarian enterprise, the tuberculosis society can stir the people up to prompt action at the first sight of tuberculosis; can lead the public mind to head the warnings and apply immediately to the proper authorities for remedial treatment; it can inform through a proper educational discussion the public mind as to the importance of curbing this disease.

"To these worthy ends all well-disposed people should give hearty assent and by their substantial contributions make possible the health, the happiness and the productivity of our people."

Keystone State's Loss

In 1928 tuberculosis killed 6,732 persons in Pennsylvania. This was a death rate of 68.3 per 100,000 population.

Eighteen lives were lost for every day in the year.

Although sixth as the cause of death last year in Pennsylvania, tuberculosis is the chief cause of disabling illness in the productive years of life.

Before each death the average length of illness is two and one-third years, during at least one year of which the patient is unable to work.

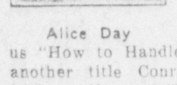

Tuning in on the Talkies by Walthill

SOME movie pests still indulge in their dumb picture habits. One is frequently convinced, on visiting the talkies, that the audience as well as the screen is wired for sound.

If longer skirts prevail "Sally's Shoulders" may get some attention.

"Dumb-Bells in Ermine" will soon become talking belles in the movies.

"Money Talks" more clearly, but none the less surely, these days than it did when it was filmed in silence.

Alice Day

"The Battle of the Ladies" goes on without interruption and with tremendous casualties in face powder.

One film-title boldly informs us "How to Handle Women." In another title Conrad Nagel suggests caution and "Kid Gloves."

The man who is "Paid to Love" must have to work mighty hard to get a raise.

"The Romantic Age" seems to be at its zenith when man is anywhere from six to one hundred years old.

For "Double Feature Day"
"When a Man Loves."
"Ladies Beware."

"Green Grass Widows" are sure to make hay while the "son" shines.

Where Fact and Fiction Clash

Alice Day is solicitious for others. She joins Ted Lewis in asking: "Is Everybody Happy?"

Warner Bros. are preparing for early release a talkie version of Willard Mack's play, "Tiger Rose."

Since the crash in Wall Street "Gold Diggers of Broadway" are scattering their activities to screens of the whole country.

LANCASTER MAN ENTHUSIASTIC OVER KONJOLA

Tells How New and Different Medicine Put Speedy End To Stomach and Kidney Ills

MR. CECIL DECKMAN

"What a sensation of new life and vigor Konjola gave me, after putting to rout stomach and kidney troubles that had held on for years, resisting every medicine and treatment tried," said Mr. Cecil Deckman, R. F. D. No. 4, Lancaster, Pa. "Food did not taste right and even the lightest meals caused distress. I had frequent dizzy spells and bilious attacks. My entire system was run down and I was losing in weight and strength.

"By the time I had completed the second bottle of Konjola I knew I was on the right track. Thereafter the improvement was rapid. Previously I had to get up several times a night because of kidney trouble. Now that is no longer necessary. In four weeks a complete change had come over me, and I am feeling better than I ever expected to feel again."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

AMERICAN BUSINESS IN 1929 SAW WANING YEAR HIT BY MARKET CRASH; PRESIDENT CALLS TRADE CONFERENCE

By W. S. Cousins
I. N. S. Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—After an unusually active and profitable first half-year and a summer of great activity in important lines of trade and industry in the whole post-war period, American industry finds itself at the year-end grappling with the problems thrust upon by a devastating break in the stock market, which wiped away billions of dollars of security values and ruined the immediate purchasing power of millions of American people.

Without exception, therefore, the regular annual surveys of business at this time, particularly in relation to the outlook for the new year, must revolve about the major question, namely the probable effect of the raging storm which swept through all speculative markets in October-November, breaking stock prices to a shadow of their former standing. Extreme losses were sustained by thousands of big and little dabblers in the market, the chief effect of which was to wipe out the purchasing power of those whose financial ground was swept away.

Major Questions

Two major questions confronted the country and to their solution the President of the United States called into conference the leaders of American finance, business and industry. These questions were:

1. To what extent has purchasing power been lessened by the stock market debacle?

2. What, if anything, should and can be done by American business as a whole to counteract its effect?

It was generally agreed that the first and foremost step in the process was the maintenance of important sections of home industry on as large a scale as possible, so that there would be no additions to the ranks of unemployed. Some of the industrial heads advocated and actually put into effect a higher scale of wages for industrial workers, but on the whole this was not deemed as important as the continuance of as near normal conditions as possible in the giant forges, factories, looms and counting houses of the country.

Construction Held Up

The leaders' conference made it plain that the drop in prices of stocks had not been an unmixed evil, since it had released approximately $4,000,000,000 from the call loan market for use in constructive operations in other lines, such as the construction and kindred industries. It was recalled that thousands of construction projects which had been held up pending earlier money market conditions might now be launched on the most favorable basis, and that Federal, state and municipal improvements of various kinds, for which appropriations had already been made, might be pushed promptly to conclusion to provide work for those who might otherwise be out of employment at a critical period.

With this as a background the industrial heads, surveying the sound condition of the country, the absence of big inventories of raw and manufactured goods, the abundance of credit, the deflated condition of commodities and the flush condition of corporation treasuries, concluded that with courage and cooperation the country could with certainty throw off the effects of the huge losses in the security markets, and carry out a program of industry and business rehabilitation. On this program all departments of business have embarked.

In Major Industry

The three major sections of American industry which have been given the most credit for the revival of industrial prosperity after the war are: steel, manufacturing, building construction and automobile manufacturing. Enormous increases in the volume and cash value of the outputs of these industries are written large in the records of post-war American prosperity, and in many respects they are inter-related as representing the individual and corporate needs of a growing country.

The steel industry in 1929, even with the heavy decrease in operations in the last three months of the year, established new high peace time records for output of finished steel and for net earnings of representative corporations. Steel ingot output topped fifty-million tons in the tenth month of the year and in the mid-summer season, when blast furnaces and mills are operating at the low rates, steel mills were working at 103 per cent of theoretical capacity.

The Auto Industry

The automobile industry made the error of turning out too many cars and trucks in the first half of the year, forcing them down the dealers' throats and instituting a price-cutting war which proved costly, to say the least, for many of its important units.

When the figures for the full year are compiled, they will show a total of close to 5,700,000 vehicles for the United States and Canada, for general purposes considered as one big field. This is the first time in history that the output has exceeded 5,000,000 cars, but the year-end sees production being scientifically curtailed, dealers' stocks cut down, prices on the upturn, and a better basis for the motor car industry laid.

The building construction industry thrives on personal and family prosperity, and cheap money. Abundance of money in the mortgage markets at favorable interest rates stimulates home construction, while the withdrawal of funds from this market, such as was witnessed by the crowding of credit into the 10 per cent call loan market, starves the whole construction industry and curtails building.

Total Under Six Billion

For that reason it was easy to see that the industry this year would fall far short of the $6,628,000,000 record for buildings of all kinds hung up in 1928. The year's total will be somewhat under six billions, the large increase in commercial building in the centers of population and the huge projects put through by the utility corporations offsetting only partially the enormous falling off in home and suburban construction. The year ends more favorably for the building trade than it opened, because of the loosening up of money supplies for the mortgage markets.

Activities in the textile, copper, clothing and other trades have slowed down at the year-end, reflecting in part the damage done by the losses sustained in the stock market. The oil industry in the year has made good progress in the solution of its over-production problem, the copper industry is holding prices around 18 cents a pound for the red metal; the railroad equipment industry is booking large orders for the new year: the sugar industry in stabilizing prices.

Railroad net earnings in the final quarter of 1929 reflect the moderate drop in freight car loadings produced by the unseasonable slackening of business, but the roads as a whole have had a splendid year, as amply attested by the increases in cash dividends of the important carriers.

SANTA IS PERPLEXED AS HE FACES HERCULEAN TASK OF SELECTING THOUSANDS OF CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Including today there are only 12 shopping days to Christmas.

It's no wonder that Santa wears a perplexed look just at this season, as many folks do just now, and their problems are not nearly as big as his.

I don't doubt that sometimes my face seems as a mask of perplexity as I gaze into the many shop windows of the town, but it is a different problem that I there find. The problem is just what to choose from the great array of excellent gift suggestions. There are so many nice ones to be found here that I want to buy more than I actually need to bestow and more, I fear, than my Christmas budget will allow.

This problem was manifest when I wanted to select Dad's gift to mother, and I stood in front of the window at Tomesani's, 322 Mill street. In the corner at the rear of the display space was a Christmas tree, and attached to the many golden ribbon cords that radiated from the tree were many fine electric pieces placed here and there. Toasters, waffle sets, percolators, warming pads, curling irons, sweepers, and many other things were to be seen. But which to choose? I finally decided upon a waffle iron, pitcher, syrup jug, and sugar shaker which pieces were placed upon a rectangular tray. It will be hard to wait till Christmas morning when mother's face will alight with joy at this superb gift.

At Kanter's, Grand Theatre block, my purchase consisted of a green rayon bed-room set. The pieces were: Pillow trimmed with a spray of pink flowers, bed spread, and covers for dresser, chifforobe and vanity. This is to be Aunt Ellen's gift to mother, and I know she'll be glad she asked me to assist to choosing it. There are so many suggestions at Kanter's in the line of table runners, doilies and other articles of fancy work, all so well made too.

"It's hard to find a gift for a man." This saying seems like a very old one to me, for I've heard it so often. Now I know what I can answer the next

Brown, 660; Clifford Darrah, 660; Mrs. Baldwin, 607; R. E. Cahall, 655.

Refreshments of hot-dog and cheese sandwiches, coffee and soft drinks were sold. A neat sum was realized. The next party to be given by the Men's Club will be held the second Tuesday evening in January. It is hoped that all will keep the date in mind.

JURY DELIBERATES TEN MINUTES ON CASE

Acquit Byberry Hospital Employee of Involuntary Manslaughter

OTHER COURT CASES

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 11.—Deliberating less than ten minutes a jury in criminal court yesterday acquitted Robert G. McCaw, plumber's helper employed at the Byberry Hospital, of a charge of involuntary manslaughter, but directed that he pay the costs.

McCaw was charged with being responsible for the death of Miss Bertha Jackson, a nurse at the hospital, who was killed in an automobile accident on November 10, on the Lincoln Highway when the car the defendant was driving struck her. The accident happened near the Blue Spruce Inn, not far from the Philadelphia City Line.

The Commonwealth called John Lawler, of Fox Chase, a helper at the Byberry Hospital, who testified that he and McCaw, Miss Jackson, Miss Irene Cook and McCaw's father left Frankford and drove to the Blue Spruce Inn for something to eat. At the inn, McCaw's father was drunk, and on the request of Miss Jackson, McCaw drove his father back to the Byberry Hospital where he too was employed. On the way back to the Blue Spruce Inn, the defendant's car struck Miss Jackson, who had started to walk home when McCaw did not return immediately.

Lawler testified that McCaw was driving about 35 miles an hour when the accident happened and that a bus was coming toward them at the time. The witness stated the defendant had taken nothing to drink at the Blue Spruce Inn.

Park Guard Eckes, who arrested the defendant, and Sergeant Harry Dagney, of the Park Guard service, both testified they saw nothing wrong with the defendant when they observed him after his arrest.

Folks of Andalusia Patronize Card Party

ANDALUSIA, Dec. 11.—A card party was held in King's Hall on Friday evening, December 7th, by Miss Beryl Stevenson and her Sunday School class for the benefit of the Lenten offering.

There were twelve tables of pinochle and seven games were played. The winners progressed. After the games were completed every one retired to the basement where they were served coffee and cake and mints.

Prizes were awarded to those attaining the high scores, namely: Edward Witorsky, 697; Nick Blackwood, 687; Miss Becker, 679; H. Roeger, 670; Mrs. Williams, 665; Ben Smuda, 658; Ruth Fries, 652; Mr. Ott, 644; Agnes Youngham, 641; W. Rukersgill, 633; W. Lowery, 620; Elva Hodges, 610; Johnny McCloud, 608; Margaret Pyle, 605; Dorothy McCormick, 601; Ben H. Clard, 600; Thelma Freas, 597; Emma Fries, 593; Mrs. Louis Hartman, 590; Norman Fries, 587.

Margaret Youngham, 582; Kathryn Highan, 573; Mildred Stevenson, 570; W. Kershaw, 570; Nelson Watts, 568; Arthur Towle, 563; E. Vickers, 561; E. Katzmer, 556; S. Shoemaker, 554; W. Youngham, 553; Paul Roeger, 548; Walter Youngham, 550; Martha Hodges, 541.

BENSALEM SENIORS TO PRESENT PLAY IN JAN.

"The Odd-Job Man" is Title of Sketch to Be Given

HAVE SPELLING "BEE"

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL, Cornwells Heights, Dec. 11.—The senior class of the Bensalem Township high school has decided to present a play sometime during the month of January. The one decided upon is "The Odd-Job Man," by Lida Larrimor.

Cast of characters will include: John J. Gordan, a wealthy manufacturer, Wesley Kummerle; Celia Gordan, his daughter, Bella Reichle; Robert Gordan, his son and heir, Joseph Gruver; Dolly Gordan, his youngest daughter, Irene Underwood; Helen Spencer, a former governess, Grace Barth; Nora, the Gordan cook, Florence Baxter; Kitty Miller, who brightens the village drug store, Regina Goodavage; Gerald Page, a young man with a poetic soul and a head for business, Harold Fitch; Michael Thorne, the odd-job man, Richard Brackin.

The full cooperation of the students, parents, and the public in general is desired by the members of the senior class, who will be busy during the next few weeks with rehearsals.

On Friday, December 6th, the first elimination contest in the Peirce School spelling contest was conducted in the Bensalem school, and oral and written examinations took place in the home room at the high school, here.

The five students making the highest scores in each room are to be picked for a team which will study and then enter contests at Peirce School in the Spring.

LATE NEWS

George Toland, 2417 S. Rosewood street, Philadelphia, died shortly after being admitted to the Harriman Hospital here this afternoon.

Exact details as to the cause of Toland's injuries which caused his death were lacking at the time of going to press. His hands bore evidence of having been severely burned, and it was said that he had come in contact with a "hot" wire. He fell a distance of 35 feet from a steel tower at a point about 900 feet above Edgely station.

The right side of Toland's chest was also severely burned. Physicians and nurses worked feverishly in an endeavor to save Toland's life, but he was pronounced dead at 1.30.

Toland was employed by the Vare Construction Company engaged in erecting the steel construction work for the electrification of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Toland, at the time the accident occurred, was working upon one of the steel towers, and a block was being released under one of the wires.

Deputy Coroner W. Furman Young was summoned to make an investigation.

TWO FOOTBALL STARS TO ADDRESS FATHERS

University of Penna. Players To Make Addresses Here Tomorrow Night

THE PUBLIC IS INVITED

The Bristol Fathers' Association has prepared an interesting program for the regular monthly meeting to be held in the high school auditorium on Thursday evening of this week.

The meeting will be addressed by Paul Riblett, who played as end on this year's football team of the University of Pennsylvania, and Harry Warren, who played center on the same team. These young men have a thorough knowledge of the game and their reminiscences of football and the games in which they played, cannot help but prove of interest to all who listen to them.

It has also been arranged to stage a basketball game between two teams, composed of members of the Fathers' Association. The line-up of the teams has not yet been announced but it has been suggested that the personell of one of the teams shall be as follows: "Senator" Johnson MacAuley, center; M. J. Hill and Stanford K. Runyon, forwards; V. V. Vansant and P. M. Minster, guards. The substitutes should be J. E. W. Tracy, Walter F. Leedom, Dr. Frank Lehman and Dr. J. Fred Wagner. Daye Landreth could act as coach, and Dr. George T. Foy should be requested to have his ambulance outside, so as to be ready for any emergency which might arise.

The annual election of officers will be held at this meeting. At the close a lunch will be served in the cafeteria. These meetings are open to all the men in the town, whether they are members of the Association or not. A large attendance is expected.

SCHOOLMEN MEET HERE TO DISCUSS VARIOUS TOPICS

Main Idea is To Make The Curriculum Uniform In Lower Bucks County

FORM ORGANIZATION

Will Work to Improve Educational Conditions in This Section

An important as well as most interesting meeting of the schoolmen of lower Bucks County was held in the library room of the Bristol High School last evening.

Representatives of the following schools were present:

Bensalem, Northampton Township, Southampton Township, South Langhorne, Hulmeville, Morrisville, New Hope, Tullytown, Newtown, Yardley, Langhorne, Bristol Township, Bristol Borough.

Prior to the meeting a dinner was served in the cafeteria, which was prepared by a group of girls, from the domestic science department.

Superintendent Howard E. James called the meeting to order, after which a general discussion followed on the question, as to how to establish a uniform curriculum in all the schools in lower Bucks County, from the seventh grade upward, so that a student transferring from one school district to another, would not be handicapped or retarded, because of a difference in the curriculums.

The discussion was interesting and developed many good ideas and suggestions. All present felt the urgent need for uniformity, the only difference of opinion being, as to how to begin to make the correction. It was finally decided to appoint a committee to compare the curriculums now in use in all the schools in lower Bucks County, and to report the results of their investigations at the next meeting, which will be held at Langhorne in January, together with any suggestions they might want to offer. The committee consists of all the principals of the schools, represented at the meeting.

Following the disposition of this question, it was decided to form a permanent organization. Lower Bucks County Schoolmen's Group was selected as the name for the organization. Under the election of officers, Howard E. James, of Bristol, was elected president; W. A. Thomas, of Langhorne, vice-president and Theodore Gottlieb, of New Hope, secretary.

Satisfaction was expressed over the success of the baseball league which was formed last spring, among the Lower Bucks County schools, and it was decided to continue the league, through all the other athletic activities in the schools.

Following the business session, C. H. Boehm, of Morrisville, exhibited some moving pictures, which he had taken, while on a trip to Russia. Some of the pictures were taken above the Arctic Circle and showed the midnight sun just above the horizon. The pictures of Leningrad and Moscow were unusually interesting. Mr. Boehm gave a description of the places he had visited as the pictures were shown.

All present felt that the meeting had been a success and that a profitable beginning had been made. Throughout the evening, a splendid spirit of cordiality was shown, and the earnest desire of all present seemed to be to get together, and apply corrective measures as quickly as possible, so that the school system may be made more effective in meeting the requirements of the schools represented at the meeting.

Those present were: M. R. Reiter, C. H. Boehm, Leonard B. Caum, Paul T. Johnson, Stanford Offner, Henry Gutknecht, Earl K. Ritter, Morrisville; W. J. Kines, Hulmeville; M. P. Hammond, S. Langhorne; Willard C. Miller, Raymond O. Gilbert, Northampton Township; Eugene Klinger, Southampton Township; George Itterly, Tullytown; C. Willard Shuster, Mr. Snyder, Newtown; S. S. Utz, Yardley; William A. Thomas, Edwin Kephart, Chas. F. Beck, Langhorne; George F. Zarr, Ray P. Hess, Donald Snively, Bristol Township; Theodore Gottlieb, Adam Bordner, Ralph Kreps, New Hope; S. K. Faust, J. M. Sollinberger, G. W. Miller, H. Bowers Peters, Anson Ham, Robert M. Allison, Bensalem; H. E. James, Warren P. Snyder, Kenneth Townsend, Silas Shoemaker, Raymond Yeich, Corwan Bryan, Walter Shank, Frederick Leibfreid, Jr., Emil Metzger, Russell B. Carty, Doron Green, Bristol; William Klees, a guest of the Bristol teachers.

SLICING THE MELON

If the ways and means committee of the house should try to please all those who are asking for a slice of the promised tax-cut melon, its tax-revision bill would provide for revenues so small that there would not be money enough to run the government.

It is manifest that it will be impossible for congress to grant all these requests. Some one must pay the taxes. It may be taken for granted, however, that such reductions as congress is to make in the internal taxes will be devised to please the greatest possible number of people.

There will be friends of all these reductions on the floor of congress. They will fill pages of the Congressional Record with speeches in favor of every one of them. It will be interesting to note when the tax-reduction bill comes to a vote how many of the special demands have been forgotten in the final drafting of the measure.

The customs taxes levied at the frontiers do not please the Democrats. But they will continue their fight against the tariff chiefly because they think it a good talking point against the Republicans and also because the professional friends of the farmers are attacking the tariff as a measure of favoritism to the manufactures of the East.

In the end congress should adopt the Hoover policy, as expounded in his message, of "giving a measure of tax relief to the maximum number of taxpayers, with relatively larger benefits to taxpayers with small or moderate incomes."

BYGONE BUGABOOS

Governor Larson, of New Jersey, announced his intention to appoint Dwight W. Morrow to the United States senate and drew, in the way of public reaction, approvals of the attitude of "what of it?"

There was an interval not lon ago when even a whispered sugges tion of the appointment of a Mor gan partner to the senate in the in formal and unexpected fashion adopted by Governor Larson woul have caused a great lifting of eye brows and angry voices in man parts of the country. But the pub lic has had time to see what the routine party system and the direc primary have been doing to the senate. The confusion of the last few years, which reached a clima in the special session recently end ed, has led many people to see tha if the legislative branch of the fed eral government isn't to be utterl futile it will need something more than the leadership of old party war horses and do-nothing favorite sons.

The time has come for placing some check on the forces of senti mentalism, sectionalism, prejudice ignorance and fanaticism that hav combined to inspire, color and ever direct the whole process of legisla tion in Washington.

Students of politics will see in Morrow incident signs of a genera reaction against the whole systen of amateur government fostered in congress.

Popular fear and distrust, once provoked by the shadow of big business are now crystallized by mediocrity and government by the bloc and lobby.

The unemployment problem for many is how to keep that way.

"IS EVERYBODY HAPPY?"

By ELEANOR CAREY

Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring Ted Lewis

SYNOPSIS

Having pawned the violin given to his father by the Austrian Emperor in order to raise money to pay their rent in New York and to buy the saxophone which was to be the means of his getting a job, Ted Todd, son of the Budapest violinist and conductor, Victor Molner, makes his debut as a jazz player in a Hungarian cafe on the night that his parents think he is to open with the New York Symphony Orchestra. They find him playing and singing jazz in the cafe and Molnar disowns his son. But Ted makes a big hit and Gail Wilson urges him to organize a band.

INSTALLMENT XIII

Mr. Abrams, speaking rapidly gave a short dissertation on the comparative merits of the two girls—with Lena considerably taking the advantage, and Gail surprised at his reluctance to sign a contract with such an obviously excellent acquisition to his orchestra, said in chiding.

"Why, Ted, you are not afraid she will steal the act are you?" and Ted weakening at the combined onslaught of all their arguments, finally said to Mr. Abrams:

"Well, I guess you know her better than I do."

"Now, again with that other number, Ted, and I'll go back stage and talk to her about salary and find out just what she wants." And Gail went back to the dressing rooms to find Lena just as Ted started his second number.

"You can work the act. But no sentiment."

Lena was hurrying into her street clothes, confident that Ted would let her go, when a knock came on the dressing room door.

"Come in," sweetly—and a look of surprise spread over her face as she saw Gail standing there.

"Oh, I do not think you want me," said Lena as she began tying her smart scarf around her neck. "I have just had a feeling right along that I wouldn't do."

Lena stared her best "injured innocence" stare as she looked at Gail who answered:

"But we do want you. That is, of course, if we can meet your salary How much do you ask for your services?"

Lena answered promptly. "Three hundred dollars is my usual price, but since my show has closed for the season, I might consider two hundred."

"Three hundred is a little more than I had counted on paying, but I'll be glad to draw up a contract for the last price you named. And I am glad you have decided to join us. I am sure you will like Mr. Todd."

"I am sure I will," said Lena significantly, as Gail smiled and left the room.

Gail returned to the theatre while Ted was still playing, and she motioned to Ted that Lena had consented to join the organization. Ted smiled at her, but in his heart a fear was making it beat unnecessarily rapidly.

The song was finished and as Ted was about to join Gail and Mr. Abrams again, he noticed Lena, standing at the back of the theatre motioning him to come where she was. His heart sank, and the fear that had been gnawing at his heart took on alarming proportions. Nothing must happen to hurt Gail or to interfere with their happy little romance. And Ted was afraid of Lena.

"Thank you so much, Ted, for signing me up," she said to him as he came up to her. "I was afraid I wasn't acceptable since you never have come to see me lately, and you know, Ted, I have been in love with you for years!"

"I want to tell you something, Lena," Ted said, looking furtively from side to side, to be sure no one was watching him. "We'll have to forget all about that. That was ended sometime ago, the time you treated me so shabbily at the theatre. I believed then that you didn't care for me any more. Now that that is all over, you can work in the act. But no sentiment—understand?"

"Yes—if that's the way you feel about it!" And Lena cast down her eyes in feigned humility and resignation.

"And Miss Wilson must not know anything about us," he said, as he turned to leave. And it was fortunate that Ted did not see the expression on Lena's face as he left her.

As Ted returned to the seats where Gail had joined Mr. Abrams, she said excitedly, "Ted, let's show Mr. Abrams that special number by Miss DeVere. It is clever, and I know he would like to see it."

Reluctantly Ted asked Lena to rehearse the song they sing together, and Lena, apparently true to her word, covered any feeling she may have had and treated Ted as a stranger.

They took their places behind the footlights and the orchestra started the number known as the "Kissing Song." The words ran—

Here's a kiss for Monday,
And one for Tuesday, too.
Here is one for Wednesday,
I think the world of you.
Here is one for Thursday,
And Friday on your cheek,
And a kiss for Saturday
Makes a kiss each day in the week.

Between each line Ted was supposed to kiss Lena. The girl received the demonstration with such animation and delight that both Gail and Mr. Abrams were delighted. When the song was ended, Ted jumped into the front row, where now his mother had joined Gail and the "theatrical booking agent." He was alarmed for fear Mrs. Molnar may have said something to Gail about Lena.

As he sat down Mr. Abrams said, "You've got a fine act, Ted. I'll get you a good tryout even though you have stolen my children's tutor. That girl, Miss DeVere, is a big addition to the act!"

"Thanks, Mr. Abrams, I am very grateful to you. I think myself that Miss DeVere will help lend color. She is rather a colorful asset."

Ted looked at Gail, as the girl said, "Your mother likes her, too, doesn't she?" This was certainly significant. Gail must have heard something that caused this comment to designate Lena specifically, and to talk about her so much. He looked at his mother, "You liked her, did you, mother?" And his mother answered innocently, "Yes, Ted, she dances beautifully."

But the fear that Gail may have heard about his affair with Lena had taken hold of Ted and he could not shake it off. He would have to take his mother home, or get her away by herself so that he could ask her if she had said anything to the girl! He could not stand the anxiety any longer.

His mother said, "Good Night," to Gail and Mr. Abrams and thanked them for a pleasant afternoon, and Ted took her up the aisle of the theatre to the entrance. He hardly was out of ear shot when he asked his mother anxiously:

"Did you say anything to Gail about my knowing Lena, Mother?"

"My son, I have lived a long time. I have seen and heard many things, and one of the greatest lessons I have learned is that silence is the sweetest music a woman can make."

With a sigh of great relief—a heavy weight lifted from his shoulders, Ted walked with his mother out of the theatre door on to the street.

Nervously, Ted walked into the corridor of their apartment. What if he should meet his father? As they came to the door of the apartment, Ted turned to leave his mother when she said to him, "Wait, Ted, I'm going to talk to your father. Maybe he'll see you. Just stay here a minute!"

"Oh, Mother, do you think there's a chance?"

"I am going to try. I'll find out!" And she went softly into the apartment.

As she entered she called, "Father, father," and when no answer was forthcoming she hurried into the bedroom where he often took a short nap before their evening meal.

The bedroom was empty—and Mrs. Molnar looked around to find the dresser drawer open, and looking inside it she found that it was empty. She was frightened. Rushing wildly into the living room she cried, "Father, Father!" Tears were in her voice and panic stricken she called to her son, who came into the room, closing the door behind him.

His mother, close to hysterics, clung to Ted, and he tried to quiet her by saying, "Don't worry, Mother, and don't cry anymore. He will not be gone long, and then you'll laugh at your foolish fears. Mother, dear, I'll take a chance and move back here tonight, and things will be again like old times."

Poor Mrs. Molnar tried to hide the pain in her heart, wipe away the fear that had been clutching it. She wiped away the tears and with her eyes still burning she looked at her son and smiled.

Christmas Seals Ring in Health

In the olden days anyone could be a bell ringer. Sometimes a citizen had to pay for the privilege; if he abused the honor he had to pay a fine. In All Saints' Church, at Hastings, England, these words may still be seen:

"This is a belfry that is free
For all those that civil be,
And if you please to chime or ring
It is a very pleasant thing."

All through history since the 16th century, which was the golden age of bells, chimes have called out to people their cheerful messages, usually telling a story. For example, with the passing of the old year the bells were tolled in sadness, then, when midnight had struck, the merry peals clanged forth their welcome to the new year. Before the invention of the newspaper the town crier focused the attention of the people by lustily clanging a bell before he shouted the important news it was his duty to spread throughout the city. Since bells have so often served to proclaim victory it is not surprising to find that the design of the modern cup presented as a token of victory in sport is in reality an inverted bell.

It is equally fitting that on the gay little Christmas Seal for 1929 a bell ringer should be portrayed tugging at a heavy bell, announcing once again to the nation that further advances have been made against the enemy tuberculosis. Each year the Seal brings its message of health at the Christmas season to remind people that sickness can be prevented.

The First Christmas Seal

Although the stamps are now well known, they originated in a modest manner only twenty-five years ago as the invention of a Danish postal clerk, who devised them to raise money for a tuberculosis hospital for the children of Copenhagen. Miss Emily P. Bissell, of Wilmington, Delaware, was the god-mother of the Christmas Seal in this country. She also was seeking for a method to raise money for a tuberculosis institution in her state and in 1907 found the solution to her problem in a magazine article describing the Danish seal and its successful mission. Through her efforts a fund of $3,000 was raised and the project begun. The following year the first nation-wide sale of tuberculosis Christmas Seals was undertaken, and women's clubs, religious bodies and business groups gave their support to this cheerful method of raising money. In 1910 the then young National Tuberculosis Association took over the sale of the Seals and has directed it ever since. The Seals therefore should be called tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

The First American Christmas Seal

Thanks to the tiny Seal, state after state has been organized to attack tuberculosis with a scientific program. Through the intensive educational work made possible by the Christmas Seal, health laws have been passed and are being enforced; tuberculosis specialists and nurses reach the most remote country districts; printed matter on disease prevention is circulated in schools, homes and factories, and there is an active public interest in tuberculosis control among civic, political, commercial, social and religious groups.

This year again the Seal carries its message of health throughout the country, giving everyone a chance to be a bell ringer as in olden days—a proclaimer of the important tidings that health is the best insurance for happiness and that tuberculosis may be cured if discovered in time.

I Am the Christmas Seal

I am the Christmas Seal,
Messenger of happiness.
Symbol of service.
I am the highest form of health insurance.
I co-operate in all health work.
I fight tuberculosis.
I safeguard the home.
I stand watch over the school.
I restore sick children to health.
I protect the individual, the family and the public.
I teach health habits and health facts.
I preach the gospel of sunshine, fresh air and cleanliness.
I demonstrate the value of exercise and work, rest and play.
My value is beyond price—my cost small.
I am the penny Christmas Seal.

Bells Peal Forth

Pennsylvania joins other states in the ringing of bells on Friday, November 29, at 10 A. M. to announce the opening of the Christmas Seal sale.

Bells were rung in many parts of the State, with as many as 200 ringing out a message of health in individual counties. These included church, school, fire and other bells.

The 1929 Christmas Seals picture a bell and bell ringer and it was estimated that thousands of bells sent forth the message:

Ring out tuberculosis,
Ring in health.

TULLYTOWN

On Saturday evening a number of friends of Mrs. Bushweilder, of Main street, were entertained at her home in honor of her birthday. The evening was spent in a general social way. Refreshments were served.

Plans have been completed for the sour krout supper and Christmas bazaar to be held in the social room of the Tullytown M. E. Church on Friday evening. The committee has many surprises for those attending. The affair is given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Tullytown M. E. Church.

time, for Adler's, Mill street, helps to solve the Christmas gift for the male member of the family. There are to be seen some dandy slip-on sweaters of a weave that is different. Two very pretty shades are shown in green and brown, and Mr. Adler has still more colors to select from. At this store there is also a fine selection of scarfs. These are shown in the latest materials and colorings.

Men's gifts are also to be found in abundance at Straus', 417 Mill street. One of my purchases at Straus' included a shaving set for one of the boys. The box contains a razor, shaving cream, talcum powder, after-shaving lotion. And the array of tobacco and cigars at this store! Unless one knows the brand the smoker-friend likes best, the task of selecting it is bewildering. I had already made inquiries as to Uncle Jack's favorite blend of smoking tobacco, and so the problem was an easy one, especially as Mr. Straus had the desired tobacco in various sized cans.

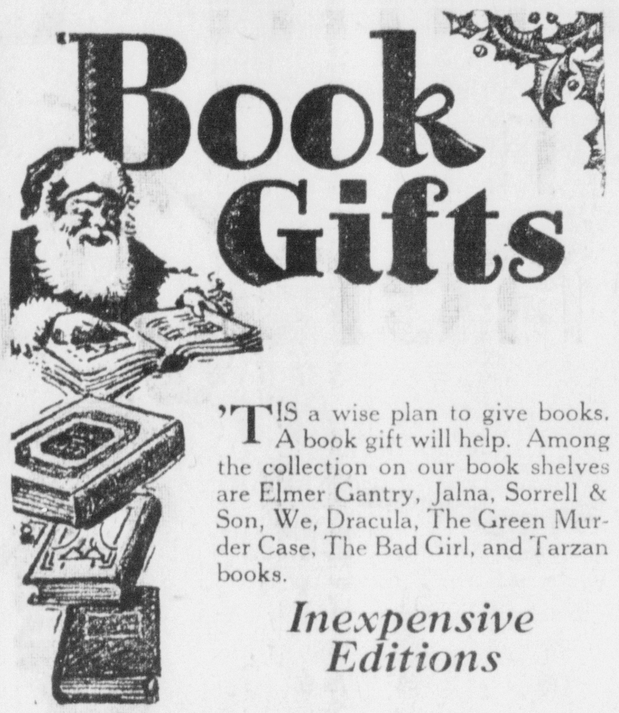

Moffo's shoe stores are located in many parts of the town. At 311 Mill, 921 Wood, and 219 Buckley streets, are they to be found. While passing down Mill street yesterday I espied a pair of moccasins that will make a fine gift, and one that is "different." This particular style now on display at Moffo's Mill street store is fashioned of smoked leather and kid, trimming of colored beads gracing the front. The leather mules, also shown at this establishment, are sure to prove durable I know, and I was told they are to be had in blue, green, lavender, and red.

The family decided to make the purchase of greens early this year, as we wanted a good selection. And duly, I made a trip to the green-houses of Jacob C. Schmidt yesterday, and after looking over his large supply of wreaths, ordered a half dozen small ones delivered to the house. These we plan to place in the windows. Then as a little surprise for all I asked Mr. Schmidt to send over a poinsettia the day before Christmas. This will leave Christmas cheer for days after the festivities have ended.

RELIEVES TICKLING THROAT, NERVOUS HACKING

A dry tickling throat sets up a constant irritation and nervous hacking that is both useless and harmful. It hurts the air tubes and air sacs, tires the muscles, uses up needed energy. Foley's Honey and Tar is immediately beneficial, as it puts a soothing demulcent coating on the dry irritated surfaces, relieving at once the tickling that causes the harmful distressing cough. Mildly laxative, no opiates, pleasantly sedative. Accept no substitute. For sale at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store.—(Adv.)

HIBERNIANS TO OPEN BASKETBALL LEAGUE

By T. M. Juno

Tomorrow night in the A. O. H. hall the basketball league among the members of the organization will get under way.

The public is invited to attend all the games without paying any admission and a large crowd is expected because this will probably be the only organized basketball league in Bristol this season.

This is the second year for the A. O. H. Basketball League and from all indications it looks like another successful season.

The teams are composed of members only and every man will be doing his utmost in an effort to bring his team to the top. Last season the ganfalon wasn't captured until the last few games, showing the close race which was the result.

All games will be played in the A. O. H. hall and will start at 7.30 p. m. sharp. Two games will be played on each Monday and Thursday. Jay Dugan and Jim Hoffman have been appointed referees for the first half.

The teams with their captains are as follows:

Arrows: "Marty" Fallon, captain; John Brady, John Rodgers, John Mulligan, Ed. Sullivan, Ed. McDevitt, R. Gosline, and John Culligan.

Whoopies: John Connors, captain, Paul McGinley, D. Ennis, C. Clafferty, Joe Ward, Ed. Kervick, H. McGinley.

Gypsies: Gene Lawler, captain; Joe Kervick, James Coyle, James Roe, Ed. Dugan, John Leyden, Larry Mulligan, Mike McCarry.

Fighting Five: "Mike" Downs, captain; H. Brady, P. Kelly, J. Mulligan, William Thompson, E. Taffe, P. McCullion and J. Patterson.

Shamrocks: "Jimmie" Lake, captain; A. McClafferty, E. Mulligan, E. Connors, J. Dougherty, G. Dougherty, H. Dugan, and N. Ferry.

The schedule for the first half follows:

Thu., Dec. 12—Shamrocks vs. Fighting Five, Whoopies vs. Gypsies.

Mon., Dec. 16—Arrows vs. Whoopies, Gypsies vs. Fighting Five.

Thu., Dec. 19—Whoopies vs. Fighting Five, Shamrocks vs. Arrows.

Mon., Dec. 23—Fighting Five vs. Arrows, Shamrocks vs. Gypsies.

Thu., Dec. 26—Arrows vs. Gypsies, Shamrocks vs. Whoopies.

Mon., Dec. 30—Fighting Five vs. Shamrocks, Gypsies vs. Whoopies.

Jury Deliberates Ten Minutes On Case

McCaw himself testified that he had not taken a drink other than a bottle of near-beer, the entire day or night.

Edward A. McNally, assistant superintendent of the Byberry Hospital, employer of the defendant, testified that McCaw's reputation for being sober and industrious was "very good."

Herbert Tomlinson, operator of a gasoline station, who accompanied the car to the hospital that carried the dying girl, testified for the Commonwealth that in his opinion McCaw, the driver of the car, was drunk. Erma Fridler, of Langhorne, also testified that in her opinion McCaw, earlier in the evening, was drunk when he left a refreshment stand at Langhorne.

A jury acquitted Norman Schively, of Tinicum, on two charges yesterday and convicted him of assault and battery committed upon Mahlon Leichliter of Tinicum. Judge Hiram H. Keller imposed a sentence of $100 and costs and held the young man in his own recognizance to keep the peace for one year toward Leichliter. On charges of assault and battery with intent to kill and aggravated assault and battery, Schively was acquitted.

Martin E. Deshler, former Chief of Police of Doylestown, went on trial yesterday afternoon before Judge Keller on charges of larceny of $25 from a Baltimore baker and impersonating an officer on July 1s this year on the Lincoln Highway near Trevose. The prosecutor in the case is Corporal Welsh, of the South Langhorne substation of Highway Patrol, who arrested Deshler on the information of Abraham Newman, of 2256 Bloomfield avenue, Baltimore, and his father-in-law, Max Youff, of Baltimore.

According to Newman, the first witness for the Commonwealth, he was driving from New York to Baltimore in a truck on July 15 when it broke down near Trevose. He said he had taken the license plates off the car when a car drove up and a man stepped out and said, "You are under arrest."

"I was taken to a garage at Trevose and then into a lunch room nearby by this man," Newman testified. "The man was in plain clothes and he showed me a badge with a gold one on it. He told me he was a State cop and asked me how much money I had. I told him $28 and then he asked me how much the old man had. When I informed him the old fellow had only $4 he told him to keep it but he took $25 from me and allowed me $3 to get back to Baltimore with. He informed me he would notify me when the case would be called in court.

"Six weeks later I came back to South Langhorne and stopped at the garage where my truck had been taken by the man who stopped me. I then returned to Baltimore and again returned to South Langhorne where I went to the Highway Patrol barracks and told them what had happened to me. The following day I identified the man at the Doylestown police barracks from a photograph.

"At the hearing before Justice Hobensack in Doylestown I positively identified the man Martin Deshler as the one who stopped me and took my $25. This hearing was on November 19."

Max Youff, of Baltimore, corroborated his son-in-law's testimony and also identified Deshler as the man who stopped them.

Walter C. Matthews, proprietor of a Trevose garage, testified for the Commonwealth that he saw Deshler bring the truck to the garage on July 15 and that he saw Newman and Youff there at the same time with Deshler. The witness said that he did not see any of the money transaction spoken of and that he did not remember how Deshler was dressed that day.

"Deshler was in a yellow car that day and was accompanied by another man," Matthews testified. "I thought the car was a Chrysler."

LANCASTER MAN ENTHUSIASTIC OVER KONJOLA

Tells How New and Different Medicine Put Speedy End To Stomach and Kidney Ills

MR. CECIL DECKMAN

"What a sensation of new life and vigor Konjola gave me, after putting to rout stomach and kidney troubles that had held on for years, resisting every medicine and treatment tried," said Mr. Cecil Deckman, R. F. D. No. 4, Lancaster, Pa. "Food did not taste right and even the lightest meals caused distress. I had frequent dizzy spells and bilious attacks. My entire system was run down and I was losing in weight and strength.

"By the time I had completed the second bottle of Konjola I knew I was on the right track. Thereafter the improvement was rapid. Previously I had to get up several times a night because of kidney trouble. Now that is no longer necessary. In four weeks a complete change had come over me, and I am feeling better than I ever expected to feel again."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

RELIEF FROM DREADED COUGHING

Hard coughs that strain and weaken, resulting from colds and recurring bronchial attacks, are very quickly eased and relieved by reliable Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, that dislodges irritating mucous without effort, and clears up the distressing cough. Mrs. F. A. Gibson, Racine, Wisconsin, says: "Coughs never last long in our family—Foley's Honey and Tar puts a quick end to coughing, and heals the sore spots. Our druggist recommended it." For sale at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store.—(Adv.)

Ringing in Health

The sale of Christmas Seals and Health Bonds begins today; November 29.

The Seals sell for one cent each and the Bonds range from $5 to $1,000.

Health Bonds are for those persons or business concerns who want to help more generously and cannot use many Seals.

The Seals and Bonds provide funds for the work of the united local, state and national tuberculosis organizations in combating the White Plague and improving health conditions.

In Pennsylvania this work is carried on by the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society and its 100 affiliated organizations.

These are truly Health Seals, since every measure to prevent tuberculosis makes for better health generally.

The 1929 Seal pictures a bell and a bell-ringer. The more of these bells rung this holiday season the greater will be the health work carried on throughout the coming year.

Tuberculosis Big Menace to State

The continued presence of tuberculosis is a menace and also a challenge to all the people of Pennsylvania, declared Dr. M. G. Brumbaugh, former Governor, in addressing a meeting of the Christmas Seal Committee for Pennsylvania held in Harrisburg on November 20.

Dr. Brumbaugh, who is president of Juniata College, continuing, said:

"The menace is in the fact that we still have many people suffering with this malady that ought to have help and the State Tuberculosis Society is an important agency in this work. It has done commendable work, but needs further aid of a definite and substantial character to banish this dread disease. It is a challenge because any right-minded citizen concerned in the welfare of the commonwealth or interested in the health of his kind should feel it his duty or her duty to join in this cause heartily with a view to building increased health.

"We have been entirely too complacent under the statistics that tuberculosis is gradually being conquered. The conquest is not ended nor should our efforts cease until we have gone vastly beyond our present control of this disease.

"Since tuberculosis is preventable, there are but three facts that cause it to continue. These are neglect, indifference and ignorance, and these sources of weakness can be remedied as follows:

"Given sufficient funds to carry on its commendable and humanitarian enterprise, the tuberculosis society can stir the people up to prompt action at the first sight of tuberculosis; can lead the public mind to head the warnings and apply immediately to the proper authorities for remedial treatment; it can inform through a proper educational discussion the public mind as to the importance of curbing this disease.

"To these worthy ends all well-disposed people should give hearty assent and by their substantial contributions make possible the health, the happiness and the productivity of our people."

Keystone State's Loss

In 1928 tuberculosis killed 6,732 persons in Pennsylvania. This was a death rate of 68.3 per 100,000 population.

Eighteen lives were lost for every day in the year.

Although sixth as the cause of death last year in Pennsylvania, tuberculosis is the chief cause of disabling illness in the productive years of life.

Before each death the average length of illness is two and one-third years, during at least one year of which the patient is unable to work.

Tuning in on the Talkies by Walthill

SOME movie pests still indulge in their dumb picture habits. One is frequently convinced, on visiting the talkies, that the audience as well as the screen is wired for sound.

If longer skirts prevail "Sally's Shoulders" may get some attention.

"Dumb-Bells in Ermine" will soon become talking belles in the movies.

"Money Talks" more clearly, but none the less surely, these days than it did when it was filmed in silence.

Alice Day

"The Battle of the Ladies" goes on without interruption and with tremendous casualties in face powder.

One film-title boldly informs us "How to Handle Women." In another title Conrad Nagel suggests caution and "Kid Gloves."

The man who is "Paid to Love" must have to work mighty hard to get a raise.

"The Romantic Age" seems to be at its zenith when man is anywhere from six to one hundred years old.

For "Double Feature Day"
"When a Man Loves."
"Ladies Beware."

"Green Grass Widows" are sure to make hay while the "son" shines.

Where Fact and Fiction Clash

Alice Day is solicitious for others. She joins Ted Lewis in asking: "Is Everybody Happy?"

Warner Bros. are preparing for early release a talkie version of Willard Mack's play, "Tiger Rose."

Since the crash in Wall Street "Gold Diggers of Broadway" are scattering their activities to screens of the whole country.
